ENGLISH ESSENTIAL ENGLISH ENGLISH LITERARY STUDIES

For Example - English – Stage 1

Assessment Type 1: Responding to Texts

Students produce written, oral, and/or multimodal responses to a text or texts.

For a 10-credit subject, students complete at least one response to text. For a 20-credit subject, students complete at least two responses to texts.

They may respond to texts in a variety of forms, including a series of short answers and/or extended responses. The length of responses to texts can vary. Some responses may be short, others may be longer; however, no response should be more than 500 words or 5 minutes, or the equivalent in multimodal form.

Responses to texts could include, for example:

a commentary on a workplace text

an oral presentation with visual images

an email in response to a text

a series of brief responses to a film text

a discussion of a film, television program, or game

a review or comment on a set of instructions (e.g. a manual)

a blog in response to a news item or sports report

a set of annotations on a community information text

a director’s commentary on a section of a visual or dramatic text exploration of the use of language in a campaign (e.g. advertising, political, advocacy).

For this assessment type, students provide evidence of their learning primarily in relation to the following assessment design criteria:

communication

comprehension

analysis.

2017 – Stage 2 English

Assessment Type 1: Responding to Texts (30%)

Students produce three responses to texts. Two of the responses must be written, and one must be oral. Either the oral response or one of the written pieces may be replaced by a multimodal response.

The texts on which the responses are based must be chosen from at least three of the categories listed below.

One of the three responses could be a comparison of two or more texts from within or across these categories.

The categories are:

1. an extended text such as a novel, a graphic novel, a collection of short stories, a biography, or other non-fiction prose text
2. a selection of poetry texts such as a poet study, anthology, theme study, song lyrics
3. a drama text or performance
4. a film or episode of a television miniseries
5. media texts such as advertisements, talkback radio programs, magazines, technical journals, news presentations, sports reporting, political commentary or cartoons, editorials, websites, social media, blogs, podcasts, gaming, and other forms of digital media.

The written responses should total a maximum of 2000 words; the oral response should be a maximum of 6 minutes; a response in multimodal form should be of equivalent length.

For this assessment type, students provide evidence of their learning in relation to the following assessment design criteria:

knowledge and understanding

analysis

application.

English Literary Studies – STAGE 2 2017

Assessment Type 1: Responding to Texts (50%)

Students produce up to five responses to their text studies; together, the responses comprise a maximum of 5000 words. One of these responses can be oral or multimodal in form, where 6 minutes is equivalent to 1000 words. There is flexibility within this study for the texts to be considered in terms of each other, leading to a single response or set of responses of up to 5000 words. As a set, the responses must cover each of the following text studies:

extended prose text

drama text

poetry texts.

For the extended prose, film, and drama texts, two of the texts must be from the text list. The third text may be from this list, but is not required to be.

The poetry texts should include poems by at least three poets, with at least one of the poets selected from those on the text list.

One text response must be a critical perspectives task, in which students consider one or more texts (or a selection of texts in the case of poetry) from two critical perspectives. Students consider how the position adopted in a critical perspective reflects a particular interpretation of a text. The perspectives can either be from an identified lens (e.g. feminist or post-colonial perspective) or reflect the student's awareness of his or her own critical reading of the text or texts and the way in which that is informed by the perspectives of other readers, viewers, or critics

For example, a text by a contemporary Indian writer considered from a post-colonial and a feminist perspective Shakespeare play interpreted in terms of its representation of gender and psychological motivation nineteenth-century text scrutinised from a socioeconomic and a race perspective collection of poems examined from a psychological and a personal reading perspective war film viewed from a pacifist and a historical perspective.

application.
